DINOSAURS & The Bride

While attending a Christian wedding, the call to prayer from the nearby Islamic Mosque rang out in the middle of the ceremony. I was reminded of how many people are lost without Jesus.

Jesus is the bride-groom and He will be coming soon for His bride—the church. Sadly, there are still many people who will not attend the marriage feast in heaven.

During the wedding reception, a young university student who was related to the bride sat beside me. I introduced myself explaining that I was a missionary. He replied, "This is awkward because I'm an agnostic." (An agnostic believes that there is NO God.) He went on to explain that he believes in the power of the universe and that whatever he thinks will eventually come to be. The Lord led me to discuss how I also believe in science and archeology. In fact the entire Bible can be proved true through them. He asked, "What about evolution?" I explained that it is not fact but a theory. Then he asked, "How do you explain dinosaurs?" To this I pointed to the book of Job describing a creature that was probably a dinosaur. If the Bible were in chronological order, Job's story would actually come before Noah in the book of Genesis. The dinosaurs were destroyed in the flood, which explains why all their bones are so perfectly kept together.

There are many times when you share your faith that it feels like you hit walls. This time I actually could see some of those walls breaking down. Finally, I commented that I saw he was wearing jewelry with a cross on it. He explained that to him it was only "art." Then I shared that a cross represents the place where Jesus died for our sins. The young man commented that I probably believed he would go to hell. I responded, "Yes, you will go to hell if you don't surrender your life to Jesus and believe." Then our conversation ended as he was called away to sit with other family members.

I believe a seed was planted in this young man's heart. There are many people in this world who are still lost and need to hear the truth of Jesus Christ! The Lord is waiting for His bride!
